

The All-Together Newsletter

Dear Parents and Students,

It really felt like summer arrived last week. It was a lovely week in school, the sun was shining, year 10 were back with us working really hard and being incredibly positive about their studies and we began to hear about the government's plans for a return in September. I was delighted to see the fantastic participation in the PE department's sports week events; as ever All Saints students get involved with their good-natured competitive streaks.

This week we move in to July and the final few weeks of what has been the most unusual academic year. A lot of work is being done to prepare for the arrival of our new year 7 and 12 and also a safe return of all our year groups. We will have exam results in the summer and parents and students in year 11 and 13 will be contacted regarding arrangements over the next few weeks. We have had a further increase in the numbers of students applying to join our Sixth Form this year which is fantastic. However, I do urge our current year 11 planning to return to All Saints to ensure they complete the transition materials they have been sent on SMHWK and that they are prompt on the date of registration for Sixth Form with all the required paperwork to secure their place. All relevant paperwork will be sent out prior to results day.

Thank you to the number of parents that have sent in their positive feedback on the PSCHÉ lesson and how you have enjoyed working on them as a family. This week's lesson looks at terrorism and the terrible incident in the park in Reading this week. I look forward to hearing your feedback on this again.

We are ensuring that all children in the school over the next few weeks are gaining access to the google classroom suite of facilities. Please look out for emailed information on this and if you have any concerns please contact Mr Fenton (afenton@allsaintsschool.co.uk). Please continue to send us photos and updates on what your amazing children are doing so that we can share them with our community we love seeing their achievements and learning.

Wishing you all a safe week

With every good wish

THE EFFECTS OF LOCKDOWN ON YOUNG PEOPLE

The Barking & Dagenham Youth Forum needs you!

Volunteers from our Youth Councils in Barking and Dagenham, Havering and Redbridge have come together and developed some key questions to ask our local young people how they are feeling during the lockdown. The answers to the questionnaire will help them to understand how young people are feeling, come up with innovative ideas to support people throughout the pandemic, and think about priorities for the future.

The questionnaire is aimed at people aged 13-19 (and up to 25 for those with special educational needs or disabilities)

All of the questions are optional, but to be in with a chance of winning a £10 voucher we will need you to leave your name and phone number so we can contact you to arrange delivery- there are 3 £10 vouchers up for grabs!

The questionnaire will close on the 3rd July 2020.

<https://oneboroughvoice.lbbd.gov.uk/young-peoples-questionnaire>

Please note, the information you share in this survey will be viewed by Council Officers within the London Boroughs of Barking and Dagenham, Havering and Redbridge and Public Health. A report will be written using only the replies to the questions. Nobody's name will appear in any reports, we only need your name so we can put you in to the prize draw. Once the names have been randomly selected to win a voucher, we will delete everyone's personal data and only the responses to the questions will be kept.

14:00 - 15:00 BST Session 1: Africa: The World's Youngest Continent

Africa's population is projected to double over the next three decades, reaching 2.5 billion people by 2050.

The continent will have the largest number of people below the age of 24 of any regions worldwide: nearly twice the young population of Southeast Asia. While this shift is often described as a 'time-bomb' for issues of poverty reduction, education and healthcare, less focus is given to the incredible prospects it provides for Africa's already rapidly growing environment of new creative technologies, industries and services - as well as the positive implications for governance and political expression. The opportunity therefore lies with Africa's young people to deliver on the huge potential of the coming decades - but what are the key trends and openings that will allow remaining challenges to be addressed, and what role can the foreign relations of African countries play in this future?

15:00 - 15:30 BST Session 2: How Can Young People Get Involved with International Affairs and Improve their Knowledge and Understanding?

How can young people engage with politics and develop their perspectives on key global challenges like climate change, conflict or inequality? The Chatham House's 'Common Futures' platform brings together young people in Africa and Europe to discuss key political challenges facing young people in their communities, execute an international multi-lingual survey, develop discussion topics and inform the overall design of the platform.

Tuesday 14 July 2020

14:00 - 15:00 BST Session 3: Infectious Disease, Biological Threats and Universal Health Coverage

How are infectious diseases and biological threats viewed and tackled by the development, security and health sector communities? Why is 'Universal Health Coverage'; the right of everyone to receive the quality health services they need without financial hardship, important? This session will also include insights on work in global health policy and possible career paths.

15:00 - 15:30 BST Session 4: Critical Thinking on International Affairs and How to Analyse What is Seen in the News: the ability to think critically is a key skill for academic success.

Critical and analytical thinking should be applied at all points in academic study – to selecting information, reading, writing, speaking and listening. Why does critical thinking matter and how can you apply this skill to other areas?

Wednesday 15 July 2020

14:00 - 15:00 BST Session 5: Will the World be Able to Solve the Climate Change?

Global problems require global collaboration, the pandemic has revealed that its solutions are international: scientists and medics have been sharing data, resources and equipment, and have been advising and supporting each other as never before, united in the quest for effective treatments, tests and vaccines. This same spirit of international cooperation is essential in producing solutions for our energy and economic transitions and the technology and pace of information sharing make it possible.

15:00 - 15:30 BST Session 6: Preparing for Work Experience

Work experience is a great way to find out about different types of jobs and to identify your own preferences. Before starting your work experience, it is a good idea to do some preparation in order to help you get the most out of it. Chatham House interns will share their insights and top tips how to make the most of your placement.

Thursday 16 July 2020

14:00 - 15:00 BST Session 7: Why is the News Always Talking about Huawei and 5G and What's it all About?

Many countries are preparing to move from 4G to more advanced 5G mobile networks. Download speeds 10 times faster than today will radically change how we work, communicate and stream videos. This is important, as more things - from self-driving cars to fridges, baby monitors and fire alarms become connected to the intranet. The concern is that state-sponsored hackers could use these devices, which often have weaker security features, as back doors into strategically vital networks.

15:00 - 15:30 BST Session 8: CV workshop

Are you struggling to write a personal statement, your cover letters are too long and you are unsure about how to align it to your CV? Does your CV need updating but you don't have much work experience and you are not sure what to include and how to get your skills across? Whether you are preparing for a summer internship or applying for a part-time job, our panel will share

Friday 17 July 2020

14:00 - 15:00 BST Session 9: The Middle East: Past, Present and Future

Events in the Middle East have been capturing worldwide attention since the 1970s. Governments and institutions are facing significant challenges in the coming years as the world order and global trends undergo a major restructuring process. As its societies, countries and the region become more fractured, what will the future of the Middle East look like? This session will examine the historical background of the region, the formation of the states and the role of the conflict that have shaped the Middle East. The panel discussion will be followed by a live Q+A. Panellist details will be shared shortly.

15:00 - 15:30 BST Session 10: Career Insights from Chatham House

From intense research to mingling with politicians, what's working in a think tank actually like? What does a research fellow do on a typical day? Apart from research, what other roles are available? What is the working environment like and what skills are needed? Chatham House staff members working in different roles will share their career insights, interests and passion for international affairs.
